CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTION.

The Third Plenary Council of Baltimore will be formally opened in the Cathedral of this city on Sunday, November 9, and will continue during three weeks, closing on Sunday, November 30.

Only two such Councils have thus far been held in this country. The first was convoked for May 9, 1852, by his Grace the Most Rev. Francis Patrick Kenrick, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore and Apostolic Delegate.

There were present at this First Plenary Council 6 Archbishops, 25 Bishops, 1 Mitred Abbot, 11 Superiors of Religious Orders and Seminaries, 12 Vicars-General and a great number of the Rev. Clergy.

At the Second Plenary Council, which was opened on October 7, 1866, by his Grace the Most Rev. Martin John Spalding, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore and Apostolic Delegate, there were present 7 Archbishops, 39 Bishops, 2 Mitred Abbots, 24 Vicars-General, 19 Superiors of Religious Orders, 7 Rectors of Seminaries and a very numerous attendance of the Rev. Clergy.

At the Third Plenary Council there will be present 13 Archbishops, 60 Bishops, and 5 visiting Bishops from Canada, 1 from Northern Japan, 7 Abbots, 1 Prefect Apostolic, 11 Monsignori, 18 Vicars-General, 23 Superiors of Religious Orders, 12 Rectors of Seminaries, 90 Theologians, while the number of clergymen from this and other dioceses who are expected to take part in the ceremonies will far exceed that of either of the two preceding Councils.

Extensive preparations have been made for the Third

Plenary Council: the Sanctuary of the Cathedral has been considerably enlarged, a new organ, costing $10,000, has been purchased, two full choirs have been organized for the proper rendition of the music, the Council Hall for the private meetings of the Bishops has been neatly fitted up in the Seminary of St. Sulpice, North Paca street, and ample accommodation for the hospitable entertainment of all the members of the Council secured, in religious communities, in the various parochial residences, and in the homes of private citizens.

Most of the deliberations of the Fathers of the Council will be held in private, but the Public will be admitted to the Solemn Sessions on Sunday and Thursday mornings, and to the evening services on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday of each week.

Prayers, Hymn and Psalms, similar to those of the first day, will be sung, and such decrees as have been formulated, discussed and approved of in the private Sessions, will be voted on by the Fathers of the Council, the Session being closed by the Benediction of his Grace the Most Rev. Apostolic Delegate.

On Thursday, Nov. 20, at 9.30 A.M., on Sunday, Nov. 23, at 10.30 A.M., and on Thursday, Nov. 27, at 9.30 A.M., three other Solemn Sessions will be held. The ceremonies on all these occasions will be similar to those already described for the Second Solemn Session.

The Mass on Thursday, Nov. 20, will be sung by his Grace the Most Rev. Michael Heiss, D.D., Archbishop of Milwaukee.

The sermon will be preached by his Grace the Most Rev. J. S. Alemany, D.D. Subject, "De Sacerdotio"

CHAPTER VII.

LAST SOLEMN SESSION.

I. Procession.

If the weather permits, there will be a procession before the Pontifical Mass as at the opening Session, and the same route followed. White vestments will be worn during the Procession and the Mass, which will be that of the Most Holy Trinity, and red vestments during the closing Session.

These vestments will be carried to the Most Rev. and Rt. Rev. Prelates, and to the Officials in the Sanctuary, at the end of Mass. The other members of the Council will exchange the white vestments for the red, in the sacristy, and Archiepiscopal residence, after the Communion of the Mass.

II. Pontifical High Mass.

Pontifical High Mass will be celebrated by his Grace the Most Rev. Michael Corrigan, Coadjutor Archbishop to his Eminence the Cardinal of New York.

III. Sermon.

The sermon will be preached by his Grace the Most Rev. P. W. Riordan, D.D., Coadjutor Archbishop of San Francisco. Subject, "The Perpetuity of the Church."

IV. Solemn Closing of the Council.

After the sermon, the Bishops and Prelates in the Sanctuary, and all the other members of the Council in the sacristy, will exchange the white vestments worn during Mass for those of a red color (this color being symbolical of the tongues of fire which descended on the Apostles on Pentecost Sunday).

The closing ceremonies of the Council will be as follows:

1. Prayers, Hymn, Psalms, etc., similar to those of the First Session, will be sung.
2. The decrees not yet voted on, will be proposed to the Fathers of the Council.
3. All the decrees will be signed.
4. Roll of members called.

CHAPTER IX.

THE MUSIC DURING THE PLENARY COUNCIL.

The music during the Plenary Council will be rendered by two choirs. The first will be composed of the Official Chanters of the Council, assisted by forty Seminarists from St. Sulpice, under the direction of Rev. G. André, S.S., and Rev. William E. Bartlett. The other, under the direction of Rev. Joseph Graf, will be composed of eighty voices (the regular chorus of the two Cæcilian choirs of the Cathedral and of St. James's), with the following double solo-quartet:

Soprani—Miss Emma Dietrichs, Miss Emily Walter.

Alti—Mrs. Josephine Daly, Miss Lita Elder.

Tenori—Mr. Louis Hoffstetter, Mr. Hans Paulus.

Bassi—Professor L. Odenthal, Mr. August Gross.

Organists—Messrs. A. Schenint, and H. Paulus.

The first choir will render the music of the Procession on the first and last days of the Council, and the Proper of the Mass at each of the Solemn Services, together with the antiphon, psalms and hymn which are sung before the deliberations of each Session.

This music, which will be strictly Gregorian or Plain Song, is "the most sublime production of that art-epoch when melodies were found without having to think of their accompaniment or harmonization: it is an imperishable master-piece of natural musical declamation."

Of what Dr. Fr. Witt writes so beautifully, Goethe long before him sung: "Music in its best sense stands little in need of novelty, as the older it is, and the more one is accustomed to it, the more impressive it becomes.

Gregorian chant is not the art of individuals, of this or that master; it is the Divine Music of the Spouse of Christ. . . . The priest who represents the heavenly bridegroom entones the wedding song, and the friends of the bridegroom join in holy love and joy."

The Gregorian Plain Song is the music of the Church, and should, therefore, be dear to all her children.

The music of the choir, directed by Rev. Father Graf, will be of the Cecilian and Palestrina, i. e., in strict harmony with the rules of the Catholic Liturgy.

The following programme has been selected for the various offices during the Council:

Sunday, November 9.

1. On the entry of the Procession into the Cathedral: Laudate Dominum for solo, chorus and organ. C. Ett.

2. Mass opus XII for solo, chorus, organ and orchestra, by Rev. Fr. Witt, President of the German Cecilia Society, one of the most effective Masses of the Cecilian Catalogue; it is full of the sweetest melodies, without, however, becoming sensually sentimental or operatic; the liturgical text is nobly wedded throughout, to music altogether calculated to raise the hearts from earth to heaven. No worldly theme comes in to distract the mind from the contemplation of the august mystery of the Altar. In fact, the composition seems to have been specially inspired for a solemn occasion like the present one, to show, how musical art may be subservient to the Church, without necessarily producing the many abuses, of which modern Church music has been accused, of late, both in Europe and in our country.

3. Veni Sancte Spiritus, chorus for four voices, by Dr. Frey.

4. Offertory—O Beata Trinitas—O. Blessed Trinity. Motett for 1st and 2d Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass, without accompaniment, by Palestrina.

This magnificent composition of the great Roman Maestro, has been for centuries one of the favorite pieces of the Sistine Choir. It has been edited in modern form for the special occasion of the Plenary Council, and was never before rendered in this country.

AT VESPERS.

Second and fourth psalms in Falso bordone, by Rev. J. Graf.

Hymn, Ave Maria Stella, by Singenberger.

Salve Regina, by Suriano (XVIth century).

Veni Creator, by Witt.

O Sacrum Convivium, four voices, a capella.

Tantum Ergo, five voices and organ, C. Santner.

Sunday, November 16.

Missa Papæ Marcelli (Mass dedicated to Pope Marcellus).

Of this sublime composition Pope Pius IV said, when it was rendered for the first time on the 29th of June, 1564, in the Pope's Chapel: "These must have been the strains which John the Apostle heard in the heavenly Jerusalem, and which another John (Giovanni da Palestrina) has renewed on earth." It is indeed music from another world—musica del altro mondo—the music of the angelic choirs of heaven, which the pious composer seems to have taken as his ideal of music for the sublime liturgy of the Holy Sacrifice.

Emitte Spiritum Tuum, by Schütty.

Credo, the third Gregorian, by the two choirs alternately in unison and harmonized.

Offertory, Benedicta et Venerabilis es," Motett by Schütty.

Sunday, November 23.

Missä Solemnis for soli, chorus, organ and orchestra, by C. Greith, Choir-master of the Cathedral at Munich. The great modern German composer shows in this Mass how to utilize the orchestral instruments in church, without even bordering on the operatic or theatrical style of most other compositions of the so-called florid Church music.

Veni Creator, four voices, a capella, by Rev. F. Witt.

Offertory, Ave Maria, solo, chorus, organ and orchestra, by C. Greith.

Sunday, November 30.

On the entry of the Procession into the Cathedral, "Glory to God in the Highest," chorus and organ, by Stehle.

Mass, Solemnis in C, soli, chorus and organ, by Rev. F. Witt.

Credo, Gregorian harmonized, by the two choirs.

Veni Sancte, four voices, a capella, by E. Frey, D.D.

Offertory, O Beata Trinitas, five voices, a capella, Palestrina.

Te Deum, soli, chorus and organ, by Rev. F. Witt.

CHAPTER X.

THE NEW ORGAN.

The magnificent new organ which has recently been placed in the Baltimore Cathedral is the latest triumph by Mr. Hilborne L. Roosevelt in the art of organ building. As an organ builder, Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly stands at the head of his profession, having from the start adopted as the basis of his methods quality and perfection of workmanship and materials, instead of the mere quantity of stops and pipes, which latter is the basis upon which all other organ builders in this country compete with each other, greatly at the sacrifice of the quality of their instruments. He deserves to be much encouraged, both by each magnificent specimen of perfection which he turns out and the growth of his business, which now enables him to conduct separate in factories in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, this instrument having been built in the latter. The organ contains three Manuals and a Pedal Organ, and includes in its specification 37 speaking stops, 7 Couplers, 5 Mechanical Accessories, 11 "Roosevelt Adjustable Combination Pistons," and 5 Pedal Movements, making a grand total of 65 stops and appliances, the pipes numbering in all 2,340.

The complete control of the instrument by means of its wonderful and perfect mechanism, the great delicacy and characteristic quality of tone in the different stops, the dignified power of "full organ" without harshness, and the perfect blending of the whole into an agreeable and massive tone, yet not lacking in brilliancy, were all demonstrated most satisfactorily to the public on October 23d by Mr. Frederic Archer, the world-renowned organist, who gave a most delightful recital in the evening of that day.

One of the most noticeable musical effects mechanically obtained is the crescendo and diminuendo of startling intensity produced by the Swell Pedals, owing to the fact that, in addition to the amplitude of the Swell Organ, the Choir Organ is independently enclosed in another Swell-box, which also contains the mutation work and reeds of the great organ, and which it would be impossible to produce under other circumstances. Considering the manual stops, this places 24 out of the total 32 under the influence of the two Swell Pedals, which are conveniently located so that they can be operated independently or simultaneously by either foot.

The "ROOSEVELT ADJUSTABLE COMBINATION ACTION," is another novelty which affords the organist the most absolute and complete control of the instrument. By these means he can manipulate his stops in any manner he may see fit with the aid of the 11 Combination Pistons and 2 pedals, which are adjustable in a manner which our space will admit us to describe. The adjustability which enables the organist to arrange his combinations specially to suit every piece he plays, has never been attempted by any other builder, and is here most eminently successful.

The Wind chests throughout the organ are not such as the other builders use, but are a form invented and used exclusively by Mr. Roosevelt. They afford a separate pallet for every pipe, and have many advantages over the slide chests ordinarily employed, such as, not being affected by changes in the condition of the atmosphere, and producing even a more perfect repetition than that of a grand piano, while the touch is most agreeable, light and elastic.

The wind system is also far better than that usually met with, the supply being copious and absolutely steady, owing to the use of "regulators" and "lungs." The Feeders are operated by a "Jacques Hydraulic Engine," placed in the cellar beneath.

Everything is easy of access, and the keyboards and their surroundings, which are indeed a work of art, are so arranged as to afford the most convenient control to the organist. Wherever one looks in the organ, one cannot help being impressed by the perfection and superiority of the workmanship and materials in every detail, and as Mr. Roosevelt stands alone in building this class of organ, which speak for themselves more in his favor than could any words, he is sure of the success which he merits, and purchasers have but to acquaint themselves with one of his instruments, to realize that they are the best, as well as the cheapest, in the long run, though the prices may appear high when considered only in comparison with the specification as it reads upon paper.

We take pleasure in here referring to two new departures Mr. Roosevelt has made in his profession. The first is his plan of collecting together such parts of organs as he may receive in exchange, which are so good that by a few repairs and a little overhauling they can be made as good as new and eminently worthy to be used in building another instrument. He never makes use of these parts in contracts where it is not specially agreed to, but from time to time uses them in building an instrument which he sells at a reduced figure after it is entirely finished, so that the purchaser can convince himself that it is a wise purchase. In these cases, he invariably makes the mechanism entirely new, and only uses such collected material as will produce a perfect instrument, and enable the buyer to benefit by the saving thus secured. He now has three such organs built and under way, all of which will prove most desirable bargains for those who want instruments of their sizes. Each contains two Manuals and a Pedal Organ, and they extend in capacity from 19 to 27 stops. He has received the most unqualified endorsement of the instruments he has built in this way from those who already own them, and is always ready to correspond with prospective purchasers at any of his three factories.

The other departure referred to is his manufacture of a strictly Portable Pipe Organ. These instruments he keeps always on hand, and they are all alike except that he can vary the material of case and add a pipe top to order. In size and appearance they are the same as an upright piano, though they weigh much less. They contain four speaking stops, an Octave Coupler, Forte, and a Knee Swell, and are blown by the feet. They are ready for use when unpacked, and do not need the attendance of an organ builder, as is commonly the case, to erect and tune. They are designed to fill a heretofore vacant place between the best reed organs and the smallest regular church organs, and though but recently invented are rapidly being acquired for use in small churches, chapels, Sunday-schools and the drawing-room.

The addresses of Mr. Roosevelt's several factories are: 218 German street, Baltimore, Md.; 145, 147, 149 W. Eighteenth street, New York: 315, 317, 319 S. Twenty-second street, Philadelphia.

"THE CHIMES,"

An Illustrated Weekly for Catholic Sunday and Parochial Schools, Children's Sodalities and other Juvenile Religious Associations.

The recent Provincial Council of New York, in its pastoral, made the following reference to Catholic literature :

"In close connection with Catholic education, and a most powerful auxiliary, is Catholic literature. Its influence extends everywhere; it enters into the bosom of every family; it directs and molds the minds of men, reaching every fireside, doing good when directed with truth and honesty, and thus becoming a most valuable auxiliary to the Church of God. Hence you can understand the immense importance of good reading on the minds of your children. Wholesome, pleasant and instructive reading will serve to train our boys and girls."

This sentiment is similar to that expressed by the Second Plenary Council of Baltimore and other ecclesiastical bodies in council, who, in every instance, have been specially directed by the Holy Father to impress upon their flocks the great importance of sustaining Catholic literature.

The work is an eight-page quarto, a suitable size for binding, printed on good paper, and will be found superior to any similar publication; and when bound at the end of the year, will be an agreeable companion for after years. The prices for subscription we have fixed as follows, by mail, free of postage :

"The best and only complete History of Maryland, but one of the best histories extant of any State in our whole confederacy."—Baltimore Sun.

"The State of Maryland has at last a comprehensive written history, dating from the settling of the first colony and brought down almost to the present year. It is quite voluminous, containing about two thousand large octavo pages, and seems to lack none of the annals which in State histories are far more interesting and important than the opinions and theories of professed historians."—New York Herald.

Few names, among the Catholic writers of America, rank as high as England's. It is a household word in two hemispheres. His discourses furnish models of oratory worthy of imitation by divines, statesmen, and members of the legal profession. As an orator, he was sublime; as a theologian, he was profound; as a controversialist, the evenness of his temper, the lucidity of his reasoning, the force of his language, commanded for him the respect of his antagonists and the admiration of his readers. It is difficult to say in what Dr. England did not excel. In him we beheld united the wit of Lamb and the pathos of Newman, with an undercurrent of the half-weird, half-genial humor of the genuine Irishman. In short, the variety of his gifts and his knowledge of the human heart, centered in the splendid, unflagging genius of a man who could have earned an envied reputation in any one department of the intellectual domain, carried his name to the ends of the earth.

So great has been the demand for his works that the edition published in 1849, although badly edited and poorly printed, was immediately exhausted; and, for the last twenty years, they have been out of print, and can now only be had at an extravagant price. To rescue the gems of a magnificent mind from the obscurity that covers them, and to present them in appropriate dress and at a reasonable price, is the object of the present undertaking. The non-Catholic will be glad to find here the thoughts of a master spirit upon the most stirring and interesting classical and historical subjects, while those of the faith will recognize in Bishop England a giant champion in the evil days of a stormy period.

The first volume is embellished by a handsome portrait of the Bishop; the Memoir and Memorials have been carefully compiled from all accessible documents.
